Senators Finish Work Today and Return to Washington

Bartlesville, Nov. 24—The senate investigating committee resumed its session here this morning. A set of resolutions drawn up by a number of individual gas and oil operators, business men and citizens of Bartlesville and nearby points in the territory was presented to the committee.

The resolutions favor prohibiting any individual or corporation from leasing or controlling more than 4,800 acres of oil or gas land in the Cherokee nation.

Operators, individuals and corporations owning many leases of gas lands have requested that the rule now in force requiring oil and gas leases to make a financial showing before the approval of leases can be obtained be abolished and oppose the general removal of restrictions on Indian lands.

On this point the resolutions say: "We believe the restrictions upon the alienation of surplus lands should be removed, and that provision should be made for the removal of the restrictions upon homesteads in cases where the applicant clearly shows that such removal would result to his benefit, and that he is competent to handle his own affairs."

"We believe that the removal of the restrictions upon surplus lands should extend to the lands of minors as well as to those of adults."

The committee today announced that the stress of public business would necessitate the shortening of stay here. A night session will be held until 12 tonight, when the the senators will depart for Washington.

WAYS OF PREPARING CELERY.

Made into Curry or for Use as Breakfast Dish.

Celery is an excellent vegetable for persons people to eat. It can be served in many ways besides the plain stewed celery familiar to most people.

Curry of Celery—Cook until tender, two cups of chopped celery, water stock for the purpose if it is at hand; drain the celery, reserving the stock. Cook one teaspoonful of onion in a little butter, being careful not to let it burn, then thicken the stock with flour, rubbed very smooth in butter and mixed with two tablespoonfuls of curry powder. Stir till smooth, and until the stock is slightly thickened, and then add the celery, the cooked onion, and one tablespoonful of lemon juice; let the whole boil up together, then draw to the back of the range till ready to serve. Serve the curry with plain boiled rice.

As a Breakfast Dish—Take four fresh eggs, four tablespoonfuls of chopped celery, one spoonful of butter and salt and pepper to season. Cook the celery over a slow fire in boiling water for fifteen minutes, then drain; put the butter into a saucepan, and when it is melted add the tender celery; when thoroughly heated, taking care that the butter does not burn, turn in the eggs and keep stirring with a silver spoon until they are firm; season and turn out into a hot dish, serving with squares of buttered toast.

SEVERAL USES FOR SALT.

Of More Value Than Merely to Serve as a Condiment.

Here are several uses for salt: Put a pinch in the eggs you are boiling, and they will be light in a much shorter time.

Sprinkle it on the fire and you will gain the blue flame so much desired for broiling steaks or chops.

Sprinkle it in the bottom of the oven and your cakes will not burn.

Pour it quickly on spilled alcohol or ink, and it will absorb most or all of the liquid before it has time to stain.

Salt makes an excellent toothpowder, but it is not advisable to use it daily, as it will spoil the enamel if used too frequently. Still, an occasional brushing with it is recommended.

Sprinkle it on the coals and shake your damp, uncured ostrich feathers over the fumes, and the tendrils will curl up smartly.

Bathe your tired eyes in salt and water and you will be astonished at the strength it gives them.

A pinch of salt improves cakes, candies, and almost everything that is cooked.

Comfort in the Sewing Room.

The more important things that will make a sewing room a comfort and a pleasure are an old pier-glass, which can either be hung or mounted, and if possible a piece of furniture of the "dresser" variety, which will give a mirror opposite. This can be turned to afford a full-length view of both back and front of the figure. A kitchen table long enough to hold a skirt, with an extra leaf along the back, so that it can be made square for cutting out circular skirts or capes is also an addition. Then a scrap basket, work baskets, and a hamper in which to keep rolls of lining and materials which may be wanted at any moment, with a low folding table, a low and a high chair, and the machine—and your sewing room is properly equipped. The presence of a "Judy," or padded form, and a tree rack, on which half-finished garments can be hung, is also of great convenience.

Care of Chambray.

To keep chambray leather in good condition it must be kept clean. When soiled, take three pints of tepid rain-water and add four tablespoonfuls of ammonia. Leave the leather in this for an hour, then work it well with a wooden spoon, pressing out as much as possible. When nearly clean, rinse into another pan with tepid rain water and rub well with the hands until clean. Repeat the process in several waters until all the dirt is removed. Hang in the shade to dry, and rub between the hands until the leather is perfectly soft.

White Christening Cake.

Cream together two cups butter and four cups sugar. Add two cups sweet milk and eight cups flour, sifted three times, with two small teaspoonfuls soda, and four teaspoonfuls cream of tartar. Beat well, then at the last fold in the stiffly whipped whites of a dozen eggs. Flavor with almonds or rose and bake slowly in a steady, moderate oven. This cake keeps well and remains moist and delicate to the end. The recipe may be halved if so large a cake is not required.

Silk Handkerchiefs.

A silk handkerchief should never be boiled nor have soap rubbed directly upon it if you wish to keep it white. Make a lather of finely shredded white soap and hot water, wash the handkerchief in this and rinse in cold water to remove all soap. Wring and dry quickly in the sun or by the fire, ironing while still damp but not wet.

Emergency Drawer.

An emergency drawer is found to be a very practical feature of a household. In it should be kept scissors, court plaster, absorbent cotton, vaseline, a roll of soft linen, an antiseptic of some sort—such necessary articles as can be found at once without looking through a medicine closet.

Improvement in Incandescent Lighting

The ordinary 16 candle power incandescent electric lamp consumes 3 1-2 watts per candle or 56 watts per hour. By means of the electric furnace in which the filament is subjected to intense heat before placing in the lamp it is made to give a whiter, cleaner light and more of it for less current. These lamps are made in various sizes, all consuming 2 1-2 watts per candle. As current is sold by the 1000 watts it means 25 per cent more light for the same current cost.
These lamps are now made in the 50, 100 and 125 watt sizes for residence use. The 50 watt size gives 25 per cent more light for 10 per cent less current than the ordinary 16 candle power lamp. The 100 watt size is far better than the 32 candle power and takes less current. The 125 watt size will make any living room brilliant; 100 and 125 watt sizes with prismatic shades now in stock. 50 watt size will arrive about December 1st.
